Aaron Reed began painting to boost his GPA. 20 years later, he's Artigras' featured artist

PALM BEACH GARDENS - Aaron Reed discovered his knack for painting in a high school art class he enrolled in to boost his GPA and nothing more.

The class ended up kicking off his career as an artist. The talent he uncovered as a 19-year-old took him all around the country to sell his artwork at festivals for the most two decades.

Reed of Conyers, Georgia, is this year's featured artist for the Artigras Fine Arts Festival.

His painting will serve as the official poster for this year's 39th commemoration of the festival, an annual celebration of community and artistic expression in northern Palm Beach County.

Just in TV hits, there were more than two hours of coverage.
